The Car with a Conscience

MODEL "30" 5-PASSENGER TOURING CAR, $1,250

The Car you have waited for

This car is built to answer the large demand for a medium priced car, having sufficient power to take a party of five anywhere.

It has every good point claimed for the higher-priced cars. It is finished with the same care and attention given to all Oakland models. The upholstery is comfortable.

The trimmings are of the very best material, and the body is finished with the same number of coats of paint. This model has been much admired, and its thorough examination by prospective purchasers will convincingly prove that we have not exaggerated this car by a single statement.

The same simplified design in the chassis and mechanical construction, which places the highest priced models in a distinctive class, is found in "30." In short, it is an ideal, five-passenger car of medium horsepower rating, and capable of doing the work of costlier models.

GATHERED UP.

He that gives freely expects but little in return.

Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm.—Emerson.

Every man has some good habits that are never found out.

If half your schemes worked you could quit working.

If any person thinks that free speech is restricted in this country let him go to base-ball game.

About the easiest thing in the world to do is to make a little child happy.

A stitch in time saves nine cross words.

It's easy to convince a lazy man that he is the victim of hard luck.

A man's friends all know he is in love before he discovers it.

A tough steak is something like an incorrigible boy. Both may be improved by pounding.

If you haven't any better reason for doing something than that everybody else does it, it is a sign that you are not doing your own thinking.

"Are you going to send your son back to college?"

"Well, since he's such a failure at football, and rows like a born idiot, it seems to me to be just a waste of money."

Citizen—What possible excuse did you fellows have for acquitting that murderer? Jurymen—Insanity. Citizen—What? The whole twelve of you?

The girl who learns to keep smiling when she would much rather weep or storm has gained a victory over herself beyond penance and fasting.

Spreading abroad the news of a $50 fine for a reckless chauffeur should help to develop the habit of caution on the cranium of the automobile owner.

Wait till trouble comes before worrying about it. If you worry before it comes it may never come at all and you will have lost health and spirits over a phantom.

While the unlovable ship gets them once in a while, the revolver that was not loaded adds steadily to the mortality statistics.

"How do you know that man is a statesman?"

"Because," replied the analyst, "he can wear a silk hat and a frock coat without looking as if he were going to a wedding."

An Eastern man advised his dissolute son to go West and run down with the country.

It is a startling fact in natural history that children who are perfect little lambs sometimes grow up to be mutton heads.

The greatest deeds often create the least sensation. A penny dropped on a collection plate will make more noise than a five dollar bill.

The old "fore de wah" dandy had asked a young attorney to write him a letter on his typewriter.

"And is that all you want to say, Hasten?" queried the man of law, at the close of the epistle.

"Yes, sah, 'cep'in' you might say, 'Please sense pool spellin' an' a bad pen.'"

A telegraph reporter says that the daughter of a New Jersey farmer ran off with one of her father's hands. It does not state which hand, but if it were the one the old gentleman used to slap mosquitoes with, it was a most unlitful act.

"Son, I hope you are engaged to a practical girl."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH CURE. Send for circular, free.

Lambert Kasper, Chicago attorney, told the following story, at a recent Y. M. C. A. banquet:

A Kansas farmer, a Dane, applied for naturalization papers. The judge asked him: "Are you satisfied with the general conditions of the country?"

"Yes," drawled the Dane.

"Does the government suit you?" queried the judge.

"Yes, yes, only I would like to see more rain," replied the farmer.

Miss Italia Garibaldi, granddaughter of the famous "liberator," complained in Chicago about the way Italian women are treated there.

"When I see," she said, "the male employer, with all his vaunted chivalry to women, taking such an unfair advantage of his female employees, I don't wonder that woman is beginning to sneer at man's chivalry."

"Reminds me of an Italian washerwoman, very industrious and successful, to whom a young man, offered himself in matrimony."

"You love me?" the washerwoman asked.

"Devotedly," the young man replied.

"Are you sure?"

"I swear it."

"She gave him a searching look.

"Are you out of work?" she said."

He Didn't Know.

A preacher who was in the habit of taking his wife with him to his preaching appointments said on arrival at the chapel: "My dear, you go in there. You will be all right. I must go round to the vestry."

In the vestibule the wife was met by a kind hearted steward who, after giving her a hearty welcome and a hymn book, conducted her to a comfortable seat.

At the close of the service the same kind hearted steward gave her a hearty shake of the hand, adding how pleased he would be to see her at the services each Sunday. Then, whispering, he said, "But, let me tell you, we don't get a duffer like this in the pulpit every Sunday."

A Turkey With a Record.

An old English country woman, who was famous for breeding fine turkeys, sold one to a neighbor named Wells. The bird proved particularly tough, and, as Wells had paid a rather stiff price for it, he went to the vendor in a state of indignation. "What do you mean by imposing such a turkey on me—one of your oldest neighbors?" he inquired.

"Why, was there anything wrong about it?" "Wrong, madam! It wasn't fit to eat!" "Well, it ought to have been, for it won the first prize at the county poultry show for eleven years in succession!" said the dame.

The Judge's Suggestion.

In one of the interior counties of Maine a case was called that had long been in litigation. The chief justice—who at that time was plain Judge Peters—thought it impracticable to keep the suit longer in court and advised the parties to refer the matter. After due deliberation they assented, agreeing to refer the case to three honest men. With a grave smile, in perfect keeping with judicial dignity, Judge Peters said that the case involved certain legal points which would require one of the referees, at least, to have some knowledge of law; therefore, he would suggest the propriety of their selecting one lawyer and two honest men.

WHEN COAL WAS FORMED.

Curious Condition the Earth Was in at That Period.

What is said to be the strangest period through which this earth has passed is the one that was responsible for the formation of coal. The planet is described as being at that time flat and smooth as to surface and peopled as to vegetation. The continents were just beginning to rise above the ocean, and the land had not yet become dry. Mountain ranges had not arisen from the swamps, and the atmosphere was thick with fog. In this state of affairs there sprouted and flourished the plants which were later to furnish the world with its coal supply.

These plants grew as big as our largest trees, taking deep root in the morass and flourishing like the lush grasses in moist meadow land, developed into the strange shapes now found in tropical vegetation. The forests looked, scientists state, like dense growths of weeds, rushes and enormous ferns. Some of them grew in the shape of cacti, having spines all over them. This kind of vegetation was very rich in carbon, which it derived from the warm, moist atmosphere. Then the millions of years rolled by, the forests of giant weeds were buried by deposits of earthly material, and the chemical change took place which slowly changed them into coal. This process stopped when the carboniferous age, so that when the present supply of coal is dug out of the ground there will be no more.—New York Sun.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY BY THE Gazette and Transcript Publishing Co.

WEYMOUTH, - MASS.
M. E. HAWES,
Editor and Manager.
Telephone 145, Weymouth.
Subscription Price $2.00 per year in advance.

Entered in The Post Office at Weymouth, Mass.,
as Second Class Matter.
FRIDAY, JULY 5, 1912.

The Gazette and Transcript is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is sent to all News-stands in the Weymouth
and at the South Terminal, Boston.
All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.
Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates. For notices in the reading matter, or regular rates in the advertising columns.

A two days' outing on the part of the editor and the staff of the Gazette and of all employees to celebrate the "Fourth," compels us to leave out "On The Farm"
and several other matters of interest.

We presume that everyone doing business has more or less anxiety and unpleasant things in connection with their business, but for the past few weeks we have been taking more than our share of trouble in connection with the "Gazette."
We have taken this opportunity to call a halt.
We hear that the "Gazette" for sale, that the "Gazette" has been sold, and various other rumors in regard to it. We are constantly in receipt of letters asking the price and conditions, we are called up by telephone day and night by persons wishing to make a date to look over the plant.
In reply to all of these we simply say that we bought the plant seven years ago with all that pertains to it, and it is not for sale, and we can only account for these rumors from the fact that another publication, purporting to be a Weymouth paper, is, or has been, on the market.
We say purporting, because that paper starts in with a statement that it was entered in the post office in Boston in 1879. When was it entered? In January, 1912? As what was it entered? As a branch of a paper published in another town. Where is it published? In another town. By whom was it entered? By a citizen of another town; and that is all we have to say about it now, but to get back to our own publication. To say that we have made no mistakes would be to claim that we are more than human.
The Gazette has not been with us a "plaything," but a matter of good solid earnest business and we are truly grateful to the people of Weymouth and other places for the hearty support we have received.
We have given the people the best there was in us, we have given the public more straight, clean reading matter than any other suburban paper published in Massachusetts, an have on file many kind letters complimentary to our freedom from gossip, scandal and sensational items.
As a matter of business we are employing a good staff of Weymouth help, we are paying a liberal Weymouth tax; we are paying more money at the Weymouth post office than any single individual or corporation in town. Our six months from Oct. 1911 to April 1912 was a most satisfactory six months. The Gazette and Transcript has not been sold, is not for sale, and we will go on in our efforts to make it a desirable visitor to every home
and a good medium through which a business man can reach the public.

Miss Frances Croke, Dead.

Miss Helen Frances Croke, aged 25 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Croke, formerly of Weymouth, passed away at the family home, 101 Upland road, Cambridge, last Saturday, June 22.
The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, services being conducted by Rev.
Frank B. Cressey, also of Cambridge.
Final services at the Mt. Auburn Cemetery. Miss Croke was a young woman of rare intellectual qualities, a confident believer in Christ, an uncompromising supporter during the half dozen years of her illness.

Have it a Year for $2.00 and the Rest of the Paper for Nothing.

Lighter fowls are best these warm days.

Heavy fowl like corn heats the blood.

Jelly from berries picked wet is almost sore to mold, and doesn't jell right. Try to pick them dry.

Cabbage worms can be controlled by spraying or dusting with arsenic of lead.

If head is forming heliothere is safer to use.

Celery - Blight, both early and late, can be controlled by spraying with Bordeaux

mixture as soon as plants are established and repeat every two weeks until three or four sprayings have been given.

Arrange to have an emergency drawer

or shelf in the home, where remedies,

bandages and cloths can be got at once

when accidents happen. Keep the place in order and fully supplied after each use of any of the contents.

The coolest roof for summer, as well as the warmest for winter, for the poultry

house, is made of close-fitting boards covered with a good grade of felt. A tin or iron roof makes a hot poultry house.

Blackberry, Dewberry and Raspberry -

Orange Rust: Attacks blackberry and raspberry, making orange colored spots

on the stems and leaves. Can not be controlled by spraying. Dig out and destroy infested plants.

The dry mash method of feeding chicks

and poultry has this decided advantage

over the old fashioned wet mash, that it does not sour and spoil and cause intestinal trouble. The reason for this is that ferment bacteria works in wet mash, but not in dry.

The right time to put a strain on a wire fence is when it is being stretched the first time. If you can "day to" with all your might with a good stretcher without pulling up the end posts, you have done

your work like a man.

Potato - Blight early and late. Both these diseases attack the vines and when severe the late blight may cause the potatoes to rot in the ground or after they are

dig. Spray with Bordeaux, beginning when the plants are about 6 inches high,

and spray every ten or fourteen days until three or five applications have been made.

Bees swarm mostly in the month of June and July. Swarming is due largely to crowded conditions. When bees become so numerous that they are crowded

in a hive, they cluster outside around the entrance, and unless more room is given them by means of supers or by enlarging

the brood nest, they will eventually swarm.

Some experiments which have been conducted by the Missouri station with milk cows during the few weeks immediately following calving, show that cows

that are fat at calving time, give richer

milk in the interval following than do cows that are thin and richer than they themselves will give after three or four weeks.

"Of all the animal friends of man, the cow is the greatest. I wish that as you are about to sit down to your Sunday dinner I might take from your table what she had placed thereon," says F. M.

Woods. "I would remove the cup of milk waiting at the baby's chair, I'd take the cream, the cheese, the butter, the custard pie, the cream biscuit, the roast

of beef, and leave you a meal of potatoes,

beets, pickles and toothpicks."

To carry both early and late hatched chicks through the summer successfully,

clean yards and clean coops and brooders must be used. This is the time when insects of all kinds breed fastest. Every precaution must be taken to keep brooders and birds free from insects.

This is almost half the battle in growing them. Chickens of all ages will scratch and wallow in dry dirt if they can secure

it. This dust or soil batch seems to be what they need, not only for keeping insects from them but for cooling their bodies in hot weather.

It is a good thing to cut sprouts in dry

hot weather, and it is also a good thing to cut them at any time when they have made a tall growth. But one cutting will seldom kill any of them. They must be cut and cut again several times before they will die and give no more trouble.

A sprouty field must be thoroughly cleaned

for two or three seasons before it will remain clean, and even then a few sprouts

will persist in coming up and growing.

These must be cut or grubbed several times more before they will die.

On rather hilly land, as well as all land

inclined to wash badly, it is best to run

the bearing orchard in a continuous cover

For all the seasons to prevent erosion and waste of plant foods. The grass or other cover crop used may be mown once or more times during the growing season,

and allowed to lie on the ground as cut

Ames, Chard street, and who has made her home with her for several years, while on a brief visit to her mother, who is recovering from a recent illness, was taken suddenly ill and passed away at her home. The remains were brought to Mr. Ames' home where brief services were held on Sunday and then the body was taken to Mrs. Ames' early home in Marshfield where other services were held in the Congregational church. Mrs. Ames was 70 years of age and the widow of Robert Ames who early in the "Civil War," gave his life in defence of the flag.

Congregational Church Notes.
On Sunday morning, Dr. W. H. Ewing, secretary of the Congregational Sunday School mission, will occupy the pulpit and speak on Sunday school work.

HA D A READY ANSWER.

A Drunkenman Who Wasn't Awed by Old Commodore Vanderbilt.

One day while old Cornelius Vanderbilt was riding on the New York Central his car was stopped near a point at which a freight car was at work. A drunkenman was trying to make a coupling opposite Vanderbilt's car, but the link would not fit. In those days there were no automatic couplers.

Three times the drunkenman slacked "en backward and forward, but failed to couple them. The engineer became angry, halted his locomotive and, leaning from the cab window, abused the drunkenman for his lack of skill.

The drunkenman hawled a torrid retort; then, to relieve his feelings, he snatched the offending link from the drunkenman and threw it with all his strength into a creek. At that moment he became aware that a side whisker of gentleman was observing him with marked disfavor from the platform of a private car. A second glance convinced the drunkenman's impression that he had been watched by Commodore Vanderbilt.

"Young man," said Mr. Vanderbilt, "I saw you. Do you know whose property you've been throwing into the creek?"

"Oh, yes, sir," was the prompt, courteous response.

"Well, whose is it?"

"The Pennsylvania railroad's, sir," the drunkenman answered.

"That," Mr. Vanderbilt granted, completely disconcerted by the unexpected reply.

The door of his private car slammed a moment later. The drunkenman, whistling what he considered a tune, robbed a car on the siding of its link and made the coupling—New York Post.

RAISING THE WIND

By M. QUAD

At fifty years of age and after working hard for thirty of them Amos Schermerhorn found himself worth less than $100.

Mr. Schermerhorn had never spent much time thinking and planning of things outside his daily work. He was a carpenter, and that settled that. He could earn $2.50 per day when he had work, and that settled that. He never allowed himself to have dreams of riches and ease. Perhaps it was for this reason and because he was not a talker and didn't mix up with politics that he came to be looked upon as a "rather dull man."

On his fiftieth birthday the carpenter, being out of work, sauntered off into the woods and sat down to have his first real think. Hard work was already beginning to tell on him, and after about five years more what was to become of him? He was frightened at the thought. When he could no longer think he turned to the post office for him, as he had no relatives to help him out. For three long hours Amos kept his brains at work, and as he walked back to the village people noticed a change in his manner.

TAG DAYS.

There is complaint that the tag day scheme is being overworked. The railroad companies forbid the selling of tags
on their premises as there has been several narrow escapes from accidents and it is a nuisance to their patrons who are justified and annoyed.—Beverly Citizen.

DIGNIFIED PORTIONS.

The country will accept with much satisfaction the determination of President Taft to keep off the stump in this campaign. He would have lost nothing and gained much to his dignity if he had refused to listen to the clamor of ill-advisers on this subject in the primaries.—
Quincy Patriot.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

According to the universal postal law
all newspaper publishers are ordered to state the name of every person from their list of subscribers who is in arrears
for his or her subscriptions over a certain period. We have received explicit warning to this effect, and have been obliged to examine our subscription books carefully for such accounts.—Easton Bulletin.

TO VACATIONISTS.

Are you one of the thousands who has saved a few dollars and plans to spend it in the next few weeks on a vacation?
If you are one who wishes to enjoy a coat of tan and great luck at fishing, Don't go away, though, if you own the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker. Give them their money and if you haven't enough left to go on a trip
then stay at home and get all the enjoyment you can out of restful idleness.—
Mansfield News.

BUY COAL.

Although we have been very recently experiencing some of the hottest weather on record, many of the wise ones have ordered their winter's supply of coal against the time when the price will go even higher than it is at present. Indeed some advices predict that the cost of this necessary fuel will advance at a very early date to several different causes, if we may believe all the stories we hear. At any rate it is a pretty good plan to fill the bins at once and be prepared for the coming of winter.—Braintree Observer.

THE AUTO TRUCK.

Someone has said that the new auto truck has yet to demonstrate its usefulness. We beg to differ with such statement. We believe the new fire truck has demonstrated its usefulness. It has given at least a feeling of safety. While the machine is new and the operators are a bit green in handling the machine is all right and will do the work required of it.
The dispatch in which the machine gets away to a fire is indeed refreshing.—Rockland Standard.

EIGHT QUALIFICATIONS.

Someone may well inquire what qualities a man should have in order to be a good Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Of course, he should have a good character. It would be desirable if he had at some time in his life been obliged to work for his living, because a degree from the school is worth more than all the degrees that colleges can bestow. It would be desirable if he had had a business training in large affairs, in order that he might not adopt an impetuous policy in the affairs of the State.—Review Journal.

INDIVIDUAL LOCAL PRIDE.

Nowhere does individual effort count
more than in improving the appearance of a town. If every citizen would consider himself a member of one to help beautify his home, the question of a clean attractive town would be settled. Too often one man waits for another, or individuals wait for some organization or the authorities to move first, with the result that little is done.
It requires no committee or organization for a man to sweep the sidewalk in front of his house, keep the lawn, house
and garden neat, to remove pots, pans, broken bottles and other rubbish from the back yard and alley way, but it all helps to make the town more beautiful. One trouble is that here and there is a man too indifferent or too indolent to do these things, and one such man can mar the beauty of a whole block.
Another trouble is found in vacant lots.
It is the owner's place to keep the weeds down and it is to his interest, but generally he fails to do it, and the lot is given over to weeds and rubbish.
Local pride on the part of the individual and general public spirit are needed, that will not tolerate disfigurements.—Wellesley Townsman.

Shoe Industry.

Again the controlling power in the boot and shoe industry is being heard. The great staple crops are promising abundant harvests, and shoe manufacturers and dealers are taking heart. Orders for fall goods which were placed conditionally are being confirmed, for it is expected that there will be money enough in circulation to warrant good sized stocks in distributors' hands. Manufacturers are now well provided with orders, and plants will be active as soon as the vacation season is past. Some large jobbing houses report that from seventy to eighty percent of their business for next season is placed,
and conditions are as good if not better than a year ago.

The price situation seems to be settling itself without much disturbance of business. Dealers are satisfied that it is not feasible to go on piling up prices each year till "war-time" prices for a pair of shoes prevail. The public will stand a certain amount of pressure, but there is a limit and that limit being reached. While it is the desire of all concerned to have as high-grade shoes as possible, some compromise is necessary, and manufacturers are being called upon to provide the best possible shoes for the staple prices.

It is generally understood that in the shoe market the price represents the value of the article, and a $3.50 shoe in 1912 is not worth as much as a $3.50 shoe in 1911. The manufacturer tries to make it worth as much as possible, but the advancing cost of production affects the materials used and the result is, the customer gets what he pays for. It is impossible to put the same quality of materials and workmanship into a $3.50 shoe as is given the $5 article. The consumer has been choosy, and the grade of shoes bought last year for $3.50 will cost somewhat more this year, how much it is not possible to say at this time, as estimates vary, but a very good shoe can be got at the old price, so the trade tries to satisfy itself and the customers.

The trade is not inclined to raise the price of shoes if it can be avoided, but the alternative then is a less valuable shoe at the old figures, and the shoe is worth what is paid for it, because the scale of values of everything is being moved along.
It is evident that shoes are growing cheaper, if for "cheaper," "less durable" be understood. The shoe of 1912 cannot out wear those of earlier years, for somewhere in their makeup are materials not so durable as the similar parts in past years; however, the shoes of today make up in certain details qualities they lack in other lines, and it is not possible that the shoes of 1912 on account of their superior design and clever construction will give satisfactory results when compared with those of other seasons. The shoe manufacturer of today is more resourceful than he was years ago, and clever expedients are a valuable asset in his work.

With the leading dealers and manufacturers of shoes there is no intent to deceive the consumer, and if a slight advance is made on shoes of a certain grade it may be recognized as an effort to make themselves whole in the cost of keeping up the quality. It has been estimated that an advance of not over five percent, on an average, covered with last year's prices, may be made; in which case, the increased burden on the individual consumer will not be great, considering the character of the goods in question.

The immediate trade is feeling the demand for white goods for women. Here in New England it is not so emphatic as elsewhere, and yet dealers are highly satisfied with results, as already the demand is greater than the supply, and the sale is expected to be brisk, moreover, to extend into the cooler weather.
Preparation of the styles for the spring of 1913 go on briskly, and conditions will be about the same as this year. White goods will be plentiful, and probably more white leather will be used as the experience of this year is satisfactory. Tans will reign, only more variety will obtain—calf, Russia side leather, and kid will be the choices and prices will vary accordingly. It is expected that patent leather will be more popular in 1913 than this year, in whole shoes and combinations with white. The general patterns will have wide toes with plenty of room for the foot.—Boston Transcript.

Why Animals Fear Man.
The universal antipathy of animated nature for man can scarcely be explained as the result of experience.
Man has played his role of universal moderator for too short a time to have impressed himself on the memory of each individual life. There must be something in his attitude of mind that communicates itself to them and induces its proper automatic reflex.
The mouse that runs over the lion's foot
and gnaws at his bone goes to earth
like a flash when man comes near.
The bee hangs in the air and then goes on because man stands by her favorite foxtrot. Even the wildest snake stirs in its sun smitten sleep and is moved by a feeling in the air to seek its den.—

There is but little to be said in regard to national and state politics beyond what was said last week. It is still an open question as to who will be the next president and who will be the next governor. There is quite a little activity in regard to other officers. E. F. Richardson of Mills is out with nomination papers for county commissioner and has in his favor six consecutive years in the past. A farmer of large experience, with a thorough knowledge of the geography and general needs of Norfolk County. Roger Wolcott of Milton is out with nomination papers as a successor to Hon. Geo. L. Barnes as Senator. Mr. Wolcott has had four consecutive years as representative of the Milton and Canton district and is well known to the people of the district. He is a man of high character and has a fine record in the legislature.

Town Business.
With a town of 12,000 people, 10 miles of road, 14 school houses, with 55 teachers and over 2,000 scholars, a large police force, telephone, electric light and gas service, there is something doing all the time.
This week the Board of Town Improvement met on the front as an incorporated body and proposed to enlarge its field of usefulness.
The heavy down-pour of rain on Sunday did great havoc on the streets and the street department is trying to get the roads in normal condition.
The selectmen have had numerous complaints in regard to the telephone service and have referred the matter to the State Commissioners.
The Gas Company has been notified that more efficient work must be done to restore the streets to their proper grade and filling in where streets are being dug up.

William B. Patton and Jessie B. Alexander were appointed on Monday as assessors of road and surveyors of wood and lumber. H. S. Pratt was appointed as special police and R. E. Hubbard granted a permit to remove the sidewalk in the vicinity of Judge's square while constructing a building in that locality.
The selectmen also voted to have the primary election held in the several precincts with meetings held from 4 to 8 o'clock p. m.

Why Wild Beasts Left Missouri.
No elk have been seen in central Missouri since 1836. Prior to that time they were reasonably plenty. They were attracted by the presence of the salt licks. Nathaniel Walker, or "Uncle Nat," as he was familiarly called, a famous pioneer hunter, claims to have killed fifty elk in a drive on the land near the present Saline county courthouse. The bear disappeared about the year 1840, though occasionally animals of the bear tribe were afterward seen. Old time Democrats said that the wolves scared the bear, deer, elk and almost every other kind of game out of the country in 1840 by their yelling, snarl and howl and torch-light parades in honor of General Burnside. Harrison, their successful candidate for president—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fire Insurance Policies.
There are not many real estate brokers who know how to write a fire insurance policy. Many, however, think they are experts about such matters until a client of theirs learns after his property has been damaged by fire that it was only partly insured. "If buildings are to be insured," says R. O. Hunsford, "care should be taken to issue the policy in the name of the persons in whom title is vested; that provision is made that should the building stand upon ground held in any other way than fee simple the policy will not be voided by that fact. If the premises be or become vacant for a period of more than ten days the contingency must be met."—New York Tribune.

Old Glory.
I have seen the glories of art and architecture, of river and mountain. I have seen the sunset on the Jungfrau and the moon rise over Mont Blanc. But the fairest vision of all these eyes ever rested was the flag of my country in a foreign port. Beautiful as a flower to those who love it, terrible as a meteor to those who hate it, it is the symbol of the power and the glory and the honor of fifty millions of Americans.—George F. Hoar.

A Sign From the Author.
"Profoundly is Greek to me, even after having several books published," Miss Alice Louise Lee recently wrote to her publishers. "But what worries me is this psychological question. Will my corrections be as intelligible to the printer as all his marks are to me? It seems to me very confusing. In the face of proofreading I feel like the farmer who before the raincoats' era declared, 'There ain't no beast!'"

His Honor at Stake.
"Young man, how do you expect to marry my daughter if you are in debt?"
"Why, sir, in my opinion it's the only square thing to do. The longer I am engaged to her the worse off I'll be."
—Life.

The Servant Problem.
"I, sir," said the demonstrative candidate, "am a servant of the people." "Good!" replied Farmer Critchfield. "Ain't this servant problem gettin' to be awful?"—Washington Star.

OLD HOME WEEK.

Weymouth Will Show What It Can Do Last Week in August.
At the annual town meeting it was voted to raise and appropriate $200 for an observance of "Old Home Week" and the matter of detail was placed in the hands of the Historical Society with a still further vote that the Moderator should appoint a committee of two from each ward to cooperate with the Historical Society in the work.
That committee has now been appointed and the joint bodies have had two meetings for the purpose of making out work with the result of quite an interesting being developed. The last week in August has been selected and it is hoped that something will be doing the whole week in different villages with one "Real Town Day" which will be on the 30th.
The local committee in East Weymouth has been putting in some good work this week and funds are being liberally subscribed for the occasion.

AUTO AND CAR CPASH.

B. W. Shaw's Milk Automobile and Street Car Come Together at White Street, South Weymouth, With Serious Damage to Auto.
What came near being a serious accident occurred at the corner of White and Union streets in South Weymouth last Saturday morning at nine fifteen when the large milk delivery auto, owned by B. W. Shaw of Main street, South Weymouth, and a large semi-converterable car of the Bay State Street Railway came together. The electric car, owned by the street car company, was driven by George Smith, had stopped about twenty feet north of White street to allow a passenger to get on. As the tree on the corner obstructed the view of Union street from White, it is supposed that Robinson, the young man driving the auto, did not see the car and ran into it. The car was struck on the front and the front end of the car was smashed. The front of the auto was practically demolished. The wind shield was smashed, the lights bent into every conceivable shape, one wheel completely wrecked and the steering apparatus put out of commission. The auto was driven by Arthur Robinson and he had a boy on the front seat with him at the time of the accident but neither Robinson or the boy were injured. The line was tied up about a half an hour, while the auto was being removed from the track.

AUTO SKIDS.

Two North Abington Men Saved From Injury by the Large Body of Machine Falling Over them.
While coming along Pleasant street near Water street last Sunday an automobile, used for the delivery of ice cream, in charge of Charles Ferguson and Bradford Sturgis of North Abington, skidded in the mud and turned turtle. Both men were thrown out, under the auto, but the heavy wooden body of the car in which the ice cream was carried, was thrown over the men and protected them in such a manner that they were able to crawl out from under the auto without injury. Another automobile was telephoned for to take the wreckage away. The car was considerably damaged.

To the voters of the First Norfolk Senatorial District.

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for Senator in our district to succeed the Hon. George L. Barnes of Weymouth, who is not a candidate for reelection. According to the friendly rotation agreement between the city and the towns in the district, I am entitled to be generally agreed that the nomination should come to Milton this year, and I therefore hope to receive in the senatorial district the same generous and hearty support that has been given me for four successive years in my representative office of Canton and Milton. I am married and elected I am ready to give all my time and attention to the duties of the office, and I shall strive to maintain the high standard of efficient and independent service that has been set by previous senators from our district.
(Signed) Roger Wolcott.

Wild Life Protection in Alaska.

New York, July 22. Arrangements were completed in this city today for starting an extensive campaign to preserve the birds, game and fur-bearing animals of Alaska.
It was learned that $50,000 have already been subscribed for this purpose and that more funds will be available as needed. The importance of this movement at once becomes manifest when it is remembered that for years to come many of the inhabitants of that territory must depend upon game birds and animals almost entirely for their meat supply.
The flocking of settlers to Northwest Canada the past few years has made important changes in the conditions of water bird life in America. The draining of innumerable sloughs and grassy lakes is driving annually the breeding ducks and geese farther North and Alaska will ultimately be their chief summer home on this continent.
"We shall begin by inaugurating bird study in all the schools with the use of free literature and colored pictures of birds," said T. Gilbert Pearson to day, who, as Secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, has charge of the arrangements. "We have the hearty co-operation of the United States Bureau of Education in the school work we shall undertake. We will also employ guards to protect many of the important bird colonies and to prosecute illegal killers of game."
An agent of the Association will sail from Seattle in a few days to investigate and report on certain existing conditions and active work in other directions will begin at once.

Concerning Vacations.
[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]
How many different ways there are of having a vacation?
You have taken a great many kinds of vacation and you have distinctly in mind how you like the best.
The general idea of a vacation is to get away from one's work, to rest one's brain or muscle, or nerves, as the case may be; and the one who has learned how best to accomplish this end will have the best vacation.
It follows, of course, that what would be restful for one might not be for another.
If your brain is a dizzy whirl of facts and figures necessary to the well-being of your firm, you may derive benefit from a tramping tour through country new to you. If your work is incessant and muscular, it might suit you better to view the new landscape more at your ease.
Occasionally we meet a person who understands the art of putting entirely out of mind the things pertaining to his work. To him a vacation means complete freedom from all business and domestic problems.
On the other hand, we sometimes find people spending their vacations studying still deeper into those very problems. These are they who believe that, "Rest is not quitting the busy career."
Between these two types is a third, the most numerous, who, while they really want to leave all thoughts of their work, do still continue to thrust out the same old straw, a process which ruinously discounts the benefits of a vacation.
The vacation that really rests one must have in it one element. It may be lazy or strenuous, in solitude or in a bustling place, but it must be a vacation. If it is to accomplish its end it must be congenial.
Crawling on hands and knees through the neglected grasses of a graveyard may appear to you as a stupor waste of time, but to yonder little man with notebook and pencil it is nothing more than the real thing, with careful scrutiny at the lichened slabs and jots down in his book the queer old epitaphs, you must admit he is enjoying his vacation.
Don't expect to be told that he is an underdog, for he is not. He is a perfectly harmless bookkeeper with a hobby for antiquaries.
Not every one can plan a vacation just as he would wish. There are families too busy to consult as well as lean purses; but it ought to be possible for everyone to find at least one day in which he can do exactly as he please.
The top shelf of most of our minds is burdened with things we are planning to do during the week. It would fill a number of vacations to accomplish them all, but there is no reason why we can't make a beginning.
Too many of us think that "duty" is what we don't like to do. It may sometimes be quite as truly our duty to do some of the things we do like.
Wherever your vacation is spent, however it is distorted by other people's plans, try to get into it something that you long for. If it is nothing more than the reading of a book whose personal your duties have long postponed.

Old Colony Driving Club.

The Saturday matinee of the Old Colony Automobile Driving Club are always of interest and that of last Saturday was no exception.
In class "E" "Thistle" attended strictly to business and took the blue ribbon on two straight heats and "Gipsy" Dillon repeated the feat in class "F." Class "J" was watched with interest, as the leading horses were well together most of the time but "Stella" came down the home stretch with a burst of speed each time and captured the coveted prize. In class "B" "Benjamin" and "Wilkes" Sherwood made the best time of the day in the first and second heats, one each, but the glory went to "Benjamin" in the third. See the record.

CARD OF THANKS.

We can not, nor would we, forget the many acts of kindness and comforting words we have received from neighbors and friends during our recent trial and bereavement. The words and deeds were almost too numerous to be mentioned in detail and, fully appreciating them all, we take this occasion to thank all those who came to our mother with helping hands and those whose ministry to us was so kind and helpful.
Mrs. JAMES QUINNAN,
Mrs. JAMES DOWNS,
Mrs. NELLIE L. GREANEY,
MATTHEW F. GREANEY,
THOMAS GREANEY,
JOSEPH GREANEY.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this occasion to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kindness to us in our recent bereavement. The many deeds of kindness, tender words of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes will be long remembered and we most sincerely thank all of those who were so kind and helpful.
Mrs. J. C. Howe,
Mrs. L. K. Jones
John Blanchard.

BASEBALL NOTES.

While watching the grand work of the Red Sox, don't forget that the Norfolk and Clapp Memorial nines in our own town are playing fine ball and deserve your support.
Fred Drinkwater's fielding in right field for the C. M. A. nine in the game with Norfolk at South Weymouth was surely high class. Fred raced out through the gate and took two long drives that were labelled hits.
George C. Carens, sporting writer of the Boston Traveller and Evening Herald had the following article in his column concerning Ray Condrick, the first of the week:
"Weymouth High players believe that in Ray Condrick they will have a pitcher next season who will clean up the schools in that section. Condrick is at present pitching for the Clapp Memorial team and making good. He recently defeated one of the best pitchers from the city, striking out 12 of the opposing batsmen."
"Bank" Lord at third for Norfolk last Saturday, is still the ever watchful, hard working player as of old. A few more hits in the game like Lord and there would be excitement from beginning to end.
Manrow, Union A. C. track south-paw is still delivering the goods for Manager Gaffney's aggregation. Twelve strikeouts for the Union lad against the Harwood A. A. of Abington last Saturday looks rather classy.
Leo O'Dowd of South Weymouth, who tried out with the New York Americans last week, was turned back to Brockton by the New England league for more seasoning, reported to Manager Eddie McLean on Monday. "Dodie" will probably play second base for the shoe city nine especially if Howard, the star second sacker of the nine decides to go to New York. Leo is in fine shape and should prove a tower of strength with the Brockton team.
Union A. C. defeated the Harwood A. A. of North Abington 5 to 6 at the Fair grounds last Saturday afternoon. Munroe's pitching was a feature of the game. The batteries were Munroe and Griffin for Union and Bates and Bailey for the Abington nine.
Carl Lord is playing a fine game in the outfield of the Brotherhood team in the Vermont league this summer. Lord's batting also is a feature of the games thus far.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AGO.
The new pump which was put in at Lovell's Corner about three weeks ago, is in working condition, and is a great improvement over the old one.
The Gen. Bates Engine Co., had their machine out for practice on Tuesday evening for the last time before going to the Danvers muster, playing a stream of 220 ft. 1 inch.
Women interested in School Suffrage are invited to meet at the office of Elias Richards, assessor, Saturday afternoon, July 26th at 4 o'clock. Those who wish to register as voters can do so at that time.
Geo. C. Torrey left town Tuesday for West Point, to visit Zerah W. Torrey, who is now in the third year of his course. Mr. Torrey is taking a high rank in the school and will make his mark in the world somewhere.
Sidney Perkins, one of Weymouth's "boys," who has been pursuing a course of study in the Andover Theological Seminary, the pulpit of the Union church on Sunday last, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Frary, occupying it with him.

ON THE FARM.

If the farm is large enough to require the services of a hired man, it is good judgement to build a tenant house for him. Then it is easier to get a hand, who is married, the kind that usually gives the best satisfaction to workers.
Line beans must be picked regularly while green for a long season of bearing. If the pods are allowed to ripen and dry, the vines will soon cease to yield and die. The latest crop may be allowed to ripen for seed.
Corn worms eat kernels of the corn and their work is no reliable remedy known. Plowing land in the fall and working it over again in the spring seems to aid materially in keeping worms down.
In the summer one is apt to be a little careless in caring for the poultry. We believe it is not generally supposed to be the case, but poultry, both old and young, contract more diseases from June to September than at other time of the year.
The thriftiness of the asparagus bed next season will be largely dependent upon the stalks that remain on the bed this season making a good growth, for in a general way the growth of the plants above and below ground corresponds quite closely.
Set celer plants in low trenches, but do not bury the soil up to the plants till after they have made full growth. They need all the air and light possible during the growing period. Never work with celery immediately after a rain or when the dew is on, as this is apt to bring on disease.
Lawn clippings are excellent to put around tomato plants, as they retain the moisture and keep the ground damp for a number of days during dry weather. They also keep down the weeds; and, as they decay and are worked into the ground, they make a valuable fertilizer for the soil.

NOTICE!

The undertaking business of the late Henry M. Ford is to be continued by Mrs. Ford. The services of Daniel H. Caney, a registered embalmer and funeral undertaker, have been secured and the business will be continued without interruption.

THIS IS CERTAIN.

The Proof That Weymouth Readers Cannot Deny.
What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.
Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.
Mrs. O. Binney, 17 Norfolk street, Weymouth, Mass., says: "For ten years I was a sufferer from backache and rheumatic pains. I spent a small fortune for medicine and doctors' prescriptions, but gradually grew worse. I had heard a number of people say that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured them of backache and I was led to get a supply of this remedy at Kemp's drug store. Before I had finished the contents of the first box I had improved, and by the time I had used five boxes I had no further cause for complaint." (Statement given September 4, 1908.)
A CONFIRMED ENDORSEMENT.
On August 11, 1911, Mrs. Binney said: "I will willingly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am now enjoying good health."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

What Became of Jones.

He came home late from work one night,
As hungry as could be;
His wife had gone to spend the day Down by the rolling sea.
He looked for something good to eat His hunger to appease;
The weather was so warm he could Not find just what would please.
What do you think became of Jones? He beat it up the street;
And went to Geo. L. Whitcomb's store For something good to eat.
He bought a dozen nice tea rolls And a rich Lemon Pie;
And then went home determined that He'd eat to live or die.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE ANGEL'S GLAD STORY.

HE angel glided at the end of the Chicago address was suit

11. Auditorium. She laid her hand on her driver's sleeve.

"There's a fast driver limit?" she asked.

"Yes, miss."

"Will you crowd it all you can with-out danger of arrest? I will pay well. I must catch some people."

Then she smiled at him. The hospital, an orphan home, and the Auditorium seemed a queer combination to that driver, but the angel was always everywhere, and the angel, and her ways were strictly her own.

"I will get you just as quickly as any man could with a team," he said promptly.

She clung to the card and paper, and, as best she could in the lurching, swaying cab, read the address over.

"O'More, suite eleven, Auditorium."

"O'More," she repeated. "Seems to me that I've heard of O'More. It must be his name? Suite eleven, means that you are pretty well fixed."

Then she turned the card and read on her reverse, Lord Maxwell O'More, M. P., Kilbenny place, County Clare, Ireland.

"A lord man?" she groaned despairingly. "A lord man! But my hoe ends her search."

She blinked back the tears and, spreading the paper on her knee, read: "After three months' fruitless search, Lord O'More gives up the quest for his lost nephew, and leaves Chicago today for his home in Ireland."

She read on, and realized every word of it. The likeness struck it. It was the same as the one she had seen in the newspaper, only older and elegantly dressed. There was not a chance to doubt.

"Thank you; and wait, no matter how long," she said to her driver.

Catching up the paper, she hurried to the desk and laid down Lord O'More's card.

"Has my uncle started yet?" she asked, sweetly.

The surprised clerk stepped back on a bellboy, and covertly kicked him for being in the way.

"His lordship is in his room," he said, with a low bow toward the clerk.

The clerk showed the bellboy toward the door.

"Show her ladyship to the elevator and Lord O'More's suit," he said, heavily doleful.

At the bellboy's tap the door swung open and the liveried servant thrust a card tray before the angel.

The opening of the door created a current that swept a curtain aside, and in an adjoining room, lounging in a great chair, with a paper in his hand, sat the man who was, beyond question, Lord O'More.

With perfect control, the angel dropped Lord O'More's card and the card tray, whipped past his servant and stood before his lordship.

"What a lovely card," she said with polite politeness.

Lord O'More glanced her over with amused curiosity until her color began to deepen and her blood to run hot.

"Well, my dear," he said at last, "how can I serve you?"

Instantly the angel blushed. "She had been so puzzled in her search for almost entire freedom, owing to the circumstances of her life, that the words and the look appealed to her as almost insulting. She lifted her head, and said to herself:

"I am not your 'dear,' she said, with slow distinctness. "There isn't a thing in the world you can do for me, but I will do anything for you."

Something very great and something very good, but I will do anything for you."

There was a sibilant rustle and a beautiful woman, with cheeks of cherry bloom, hair of jet and eyes of pure Irish blue, moved to Lord O'More's side, and, catching his arm, she said to him:

"Terence! Have you lost your understanding what the child said? Look at her face! See what she has!"

"I beg your pardon," he said. "The fact is, I am leaving Chicago sorely disappointed. It makes me bitter and reckless. I thought it was some more of those queer, useless people that have turned their backs on me constantly, and I was careless. Forgive me and tell me why you came."

"I will tell you," said the angel, stooping, "and if I don't I won't do it. But I begin all wrong, and now I don't know how to make you like me," said his lordship, with sincere penitence in his tone.

The angel looked into the beautiful woman's face.

"Are you his wife?" she asked.

"Yes," said the woman, "I am his wife."

"Well," said the angel judiciously, "the Bird Woman says no in the whole world knows all a man's big business and all his little business as his wife does. What you think of him ought to do for me. Do you like him?"

"Better than any one in the whole world," said Lord O'More, with a sigh.

The angel moved a second, and then her legs tumbled to the floor again.

"Yes, but have you any one you could like better if he wasn't all right?" she asked.

"I have three of his sons, two little daughters, a father, mother and several brothers and sisters," came the quick reply.

"Lord O'More," said the angel, "I love him so much that I would give up every one of them with dry eyes. If by so doing I could save him," said Lord O'More.

"Oh," cried the angel. "Oh, my!"

She lifted her clear eyes to Lord O'More's and shook her head.

"Never, never, never, do that," she said. "But it's a mighty big thing to your credit that she thinks so. I guess I'll tell you why I came."

She slid down the paper and touched the portrait.

"When you were just a boy, did people call you Freckles?" she asked.

"Dozens of good fellows all over Ireland, and the countess are doing it to-day," answered Lord O'More.

The angel's face lighted with her most beautiful smile.

"I was sure of it," she said winningly. "That's what you call him, and he is sure of it. I doubt if any one of those three boys of yours are more so. But it's been twenty years. Seems to me you've been a long time coming."

Lord O'More caught the angel's wrists and his wife slipped her arms about her.

"Steady, my girl," said the man's voice hoarsely. "Don't make me think you've brought word of the boy at this last hour unless you know surely."

"It's all right," said the angel. "We have him, and there's no chance of a mistake. If I hadn't gone to that home for his little clothes and heard of you on the street, or anywhere, I should have stopped and asked you who you were just because you are so like him. It's all right. I can tell you where Freckles is; but whether you deserve to know that's another matter."

Lord O'More did not hear her. He dropped back in his chair and, covering his face, burst into those terrible sobs that shake and shake a strong man.

"Umph! Looks pretty fair for Freckles," muttered the angel. "Lots of them are expected. Now perhaps they can explain this."

They did explain so fully that in a few minutes the angel was on her feet, burrowing Lord and Lady O'More to read the card she had just given her.

"You said Freckles' old nurse knew his mother's picture instantly," said the angel. "I want that picture and the bundle of little clothes."

Lady and Lord O'More gave them into her hands.

The likeness was a large miniature painted on ivory, with a frame of beaten gold, and the face that looked out of it was of extreme beauty and surpassing sweetness. Surrounded by masses of dark hair was a delicately cut face, with big eyes. In an upper part of the head, a yellow and white Freckles, but the line carving in a smile was his very own. The angel gazed at it as if she could never leave off.

Then, with a quivering breath, she laid the portrait aside and reached both arms for Lord O'More's neck.

"That will save Freckles' life and insure his happiness," she said positively. "Thank you, oh, thank you for coming!"

She kissed and hugged him and then the wife who had come with him. She opened the bundle, and the yellow and white Freckles, but the line carving in a smile was his very own. The angel gazed at it as if she could never leave off.

"That will save Freckles' life and insure his happiness," she said positively. "Thank you, oh, thank you for coming!"

She kissed and hugged him and then the wife who had come with him. She opened the bundle, and the yellow and white Freckles, but the line carving in a smile was his very own. The angel gazed at it as if she could never leave off.

Then, with a quivering breath, she laid the portrait aside and reached both arms for Lord O'More's neck.
